

Ben Agger Center for Theory Library

Now Open for Fall Semester

The space is open to faculty and graduate students alike in all departments. Available 24/7 but only available for students to check-out books during office hours or by appointment. The Center for Theory Library is an excellent space to study or check out books for research. It also contains a growing number of books on graduate course syllabi to save student money from buying them. The space is also available to for meetings, events or to hold classes in a comfy and intimate manner.

With more books than ever, in all different subjects, and with more to come, please come and enjoy the space!

- ▶ Quiet place to study
- ▶ Hold meetings, classes, or events
- ▶ Check out books
- ▶ Contact Ian Jara (richard.jara2@mavs.uta.edu) to receive access using your UTA Mav ID

Where: University Hall Building; Room 203

Open Hours: Monday 10-12 and Wednesday 12-3

Other: Also available by booking times
(<https://outlook.office365.com/owa/calendar/BATL@mavs.uta.edu/bookings/>)